

Czech Republic and France dominate 2010 Tennis Europe Winter Cups by HEAD

Europe's biggest indoor junior team tennis competition has come to an end for another year, with the Czech Republic and France recording historic wins, wrapping up both of the girls' and boys' competitions respectively.

The final round stages of both the 14 and 16 & Under girls' categories were staged in Pruhonice, Czech Republic, where the two teams from the host nation repaid the home support by giving the local fans plenty to cheer about.

The Czechs began the final day with a battle of two unseeded teams against Great Britain in the 14 & Under final.

Kristyna Rouckova put the hosts ahead, scoring a 6-2 6-3 win over Katie Boulter in the opening match. The British team had recovered from the loss of the first singles match in both of their previous final round ties (against Croatia and Germany), but could not repeat the trick for a third time, as Europe's #9-ranked player Katerina Siniakova went on to score a minor upset over #8 Eleanor Dean 6-3 6-4 to seal the tie for the Czechs.

Speaking after the win, Czech captain Daniel Filjo said "It's a great feeling. We did not really expect the victory and so we appreciate it much more. The other teams to reach the finals were all very strong, and we expected to finish somewhere around fifth to eighth."

The victory marks a third Winter Cups title for the Czech Girls' 14 & Under team, following on from wins in 1994 and 2006. Czechoslovakia also won this age category in 1993. Great Britain has now lost in the final in two of the last three years. In the play-off for third place, Ukraine beat Germany 3-0.

In the 16 & Under event, the Czechs were in command throughout the weekend after surviving a tough opening match against Russia, during which they >>

<< were forced to come from behind, with Petra Rohanova defeating European #1 Daria Gavrilova before team-mates Pernila Mendesova and Tereza Smitkova secured a three set doubles win to decide the tie.

In the remaining two ties, the Czechs did not concede a match, blasting past France for the loss of just thirteen games in the semi finals, and seeing off 2004 champions Belarus in Sunday's final.

Tournament veteran Rohanova – appearing at the final rounds for a third consecutive year (though first in this age group) - was once again the star of the show, sealing the win with a 7-5 6-0 win over Darya Lebesheva, following on from Mendesova's three-set opening win over Ilona Kremen.

It is the second time in three years that Czech Republic has won the 16 & Under event. In adding the 16 & Under title to the 14 & Under event won earlier in the day, Czech Republic becomes just the third nation in the 30-year history of the event to capture both titles in the same year. The feat was previously only achieved by Germany (1982 and 1992) and Russia (2000-2002, 2005).

Czech team captain Vladimír Volejník admitted that he had not expected his team to win the event, saying, "I hoped that we would manage to reach the semifinals and make third place. The girls showed a great team spirit. They were very well-balanced, and Petra in particular performed very well without any mistakes. These results [the dual 14/16 Under wins] are a great success for the Czech Tennis Association, and their remarkable work with young players."

France overcame the Slovak Republic in a hotly-contested boys' 14 & Under final in Ascoli, Italy, to regain the title for the first time since 2004.

Thomas Brechemeier gave the French team an early lead with a straightforward 6-4 6-4 win over Slovak #2 Martin Blasko in the opening singles rubber.

European #2 Oliver Nagy then levelled the tie, surviving a second set fight back to outlast arguably the most impressive player of the recent indoor season, 'Les Petits As' champion Quentin Halys 7-6(4) 3-6 6-2. >>

<< French #3 Maxim Janvier then joined Halys for the deciding doubles match, and the pair comfortably despatched Blasko & Nagy for the loss of just four games to seal the victory.

The win is the fifth title overall in this age category for France, who also defeated defending champions Great Britain in the qualifying rounds. Britain went on to finish in fifth place overall.

In Ronchin, France, the stage was set for a historic result, as the final between the host nation and Czech Republic would produce either a double boys' win for France, or an unprecedented 'hat-trick' of Winter Cups titles for the visitors.

Grégoire Barrere put the home team ahead with a 6-0 6-4 win over Vaclav Safranek in the opening singles match before Europe's #10 player Mathias Bourgue settled the tie with a 6-0 7-6 victory over Czech #1 Marek Jaloviec. The two players then returned to the court for the dead doubles match, in which Bourgue teamed with Lucas Pouille to defeat Jaloviec and Adam Pavlasek 7-5 7-5 and complete a 3-0 rout.

Seeded #2 this year, France has now won four of the last six editions of this age category of the competition, and has won the event more times than any other nation with a total of twelve 16 & Under titles. In addition, France becomes just the third team ever to win both boys' titles in the same year, a feat achieved previously only by Spain (in 2002) and Germany (1983-84).

Serbia beat Portugal, who were playing at the final rounds for the first time, 3-0 to take third place.

A total of 118 national teams took part in the 2010 competition, which marked the 30th edition of the 14 & Under event. Former participants during that time have included Rafael Nadal, Andy Murray, Novak Djokovic, Kim Clijsters, Justine Henin and Dinara Safina.

Tennis Europe Junior Committee Chairperson Ayda Uluç expressed her satisfaction with the event, saying "Once again the Tennis Europe Winter Cups by HEAD has been an exceptionally tough but rewarding competition for the players, and I have no doubt that we have seen some future Davis and Fed Cup teams in action over the last three weeks. We'd like to thank all of the member nations that took part, especially the 11 countries to have hosted qualifying and final round ties, as without their help this massive event would not be possible. I'd also like to thank HEAD for their continuing support for the event."

Obituary – Lothar Schrögel

Tennis Europe is greatly saddened to report the recent passing of Lothar Schrögel, who passed away on Monday 15th February after a long illness at the age of 73.

Working as a volunteer, Mr. Schrögel had made an enormous contribution to Tennis Europe over the years. Aside from a number of national honorary posts, he was a valued member of the Tennis Europe Junior Committee from 2002 - 2010.

He also served for 11 years as Vice-President of the German Tennis Federation, where his role also took in the chairmanship of the junior department.

Tennis Europe extends its sympathy and best wishes to Mr. Schrögel's family.

In the Spotlight: Günther Lang

Chairman of Tennis Europe's Development Committee, Günther Lang has been involved in the sport all his life, from his earliest days as a runner-up at the junior team championships in Bavaria, and is still dedicated to inter-club play. Now entering his 14th year as Vice-President of the German Tennis Federation, he has been a member of Tennis Europe's Development Committee since 2005 and the Board of Management since 2008. We met up with him to find out about the work of the development committee.

A lot of people might not be familiar with the work of the Development Committee? What are its roles and aims?

Well, it is the role of the Committee to shape Europe's development policies through the discussion of issues related to the development of the sport and to suggest topics, tasks and projects to the Board of Management. We are also responsible for the spending of the budget allocated to us by the International Tennis Federation (ITF) each year, and ensuring that this money is invested as effectively as possible to increase tennis participation and performance all over Europe.

Europe's share of the ITF/Grand Slam Development Fund has declined in the recent years compared to other continents/regions. Do you think that this reflects improvements within Europe or can be attributed to greater demands for development aid from other regions?

It's important to note that in real terms, Europe's share is more or less stable, but you're right that the proportion is less than it historically has been. However, there is still a great need for more funds for development in Europe. Since 1990, there has been a great proliferation in the number of countries, and of course many of the younger nations have not inherited satisfactory infrastructures and need more help than we are currently able to give. Of course, other regions all have similar problems.

As you mentioned, Europe has changed significantly in the past 20 years. How has this impacted Tennis Europe's development work?

It has led to a great number of requests for help, and calls for many new projects. Some of the "new" countries are very active in developing tennis and our goal is to support those countries in the best way possible. For this reason, the budget is spent in an increasingly wide variety of ways; ranging from travel grants, training camps and Touring Teams to equipment distribution, coaches courses and research. It is not sufficient to just provide financial support; more important is the exchange of know-how and the willingness to learn.

The biggest initiative globally in recent years has been the Play and Stay scheme. Do you feel that this has been a success, and what evidence have we seen for this in Europe?

It has been a great success. It is wonderful to see the same methods being used in such a diverse array of countries, and also that so many countries have been eager to adopt the principles of the scheme. 'Play and Stay' has been good not just for developing countries, but even for the most advanced nations.

One of Tennis Europe's principal development activities since Day 1 has been the European Coaches Symposium. What are the plans for this year, and why is coaches' education given such priority?

Well, coaches' education is fundamental to tennis development and to almost all of our development initiatives. Without well-educated tennis coaches, there is no way to successfully develop tennis in any country, so this is why we give it such a priority. This year the ECS will be in Moscow, Russia for the first time, and given the successes of Russian tennis in recent years, I am excited to see how the programme can inspire those in attendance.

In the past few years, TE has been funding specific projects from national federations. Can you explain why this policy has been adopted?

Well, there are a number of reasons, but in order for us to gauge how successful any given development project has been, it is important to see a plan for the project and to have regular reports on progress. Federations must therefore present a 5-year plan to us before they will be considered for such project funding. Another side effect is that results and experience can be shared, and other nations can >>

<< benefit from previous projects.

Which specific projects are currently underway?

There are several projects going on at the moment. Related to the Play and Stay scheme, Bosnia & Herzegovina, Estonia and Lithuania are all focusing on developing opportunities for 10 & Under tennis, for example. Other nations are focusing on coaches' education with their projects.

The ITF/Tennis Europe 14 & Under Development

Championships will take place next month in Antalya, what is the aim of this special event?

It's one of the few closed events on the Tennis Europe Junior Tour, and gives selected kids from developing nations the chance to compete in back-to-back championships, with consolation draws and a doubles event, guaranteeing two weeks of high-level Tour competition. A number of well-known players have been able to benefit from taking part at the event in the past, such as Marcos Baghdatis, Kaia Kanepi and the up-and-coming Grigor Dimitrov.

The ATP World Tour has announced a long-term agreement with Corona Extra. The company will become the official beer sponsor of the Tour, and will receive a prominent presence at ATP World Tour events, including net branding and other marketing rights.

Justine Henin has accepted a wild card invitation to enter the BNP Paribas Open in Indian Wells, starting on 8th March. The former world #1 will re-appear on the Sony Ericsson WTA Tour rankings following the event, her third tournament back since returning to the sport in January.

Italy and USA will host the Fed Cup by BNP Paribas semi finals, after winning away matches against Ukraine and France respectively in the first round. Italy will next face Czech Republic, whilst USA will take on Russia during the weekend of 24-25 April. The draws for the play-offs have also been conducted. The World Group ties see Belgium host Estonia, Ukraine host Australia, Germany host France and Serbia host the Slovak Republic. In World Group II action, Spain travel to Poland, Sweden host China, Slovenia host Japan and, in the only tie not to feature a European team, Argentina travels to Canada.

The ITF has announced that Davis Cup by BNP Paribas Europe Zone Group III event will be held on clay in Athens, Greece during the week beginning May 10th, with teams from Albania, Andorra, Armenia, Georgia, Greece, Iceland, Luxembourg, Malta, Moldova, Montenegro and San Marino due to compete.

Kim Clijsters became the first ever athlete to be immortalised as a Barbie doll, with the product on show at a recent European toy fair.

Just three months on from his retirement as a professional, former world #1 Marat Safin has already committed to the senior circuit, and will make his debut on the Champion's Tour in Rio de Janeiro from March 12-14.

Jelena Jankovic has announced that she will move her training base from Bradenton, Florida to Dubai.

Flavia Pennetta and Ana Ivanovic have both signed deals with adidas recently. Ivanovic's deal is said to be an all-encompassing 'lifetime' partnership, with the former world #1 obliged to promote the brand after her retirement from the sport.

The pre-Wimbledon grass court in s'Hertogenbosch, Netherlands, has changed its name from the Ordina Open to the UNICEF Open in order to raise awareness of the charity.

Tommy Haas has gained US citizenship. The German former world #2 will continue to represent his birth country in international competition.

Rafael Nadal makes a guest appearance in the video for the new single 'Gypsy' by Colombian singer Shakira.

Tennis players once again feature prominently in the nominations for the upcoming Laureus World Sports Awards, due to be held in Abu Dhabi next month. World #1s Roger Federer and Serena Williams are both up for the prestigious Sportsman/woman of the Year prize. Tennis also features strongly in other categories, with Juan Martin Del Potro (Breakthrough of the Year), Kim Clijsters (Comeback of the Year) and Shingo Kuneida (Sportsperson of the Year with a Disability) also nominated.

Federer came out on top at the ATP World Tour Awards, taking the Player of the Year award for the fifth time, and winning the Stefan Edberg Sportsmanship Award for a record sixth consecutive year. The Swiss star also won the ATPWorldTour.com Fans' Favourite for a seventh year in a row. Bob & Mike Bryan won the doubles equivalent for a fifth year running.

Wimbledon Village will be home to a new Hollywood-style 'Walk of Fame' featuring contributions from the legends of the sports.

Dubai champion Venus Williams will join reigning Grand Slam champions Svetlana Kuznetsova and Kim Clijsters, plus Ana Ivanovic (a late replacement for Serena Williams) at the Billie Jean King Cup at Madison Square Garden, New York on March 1st. One-set semi finals will be followed by a best of three-set final with $1.2 million prize money on offer.

Fast Facts

Among TV tennis fans in Europe the most popular event is Wimbledon, followed by the French Open and the Davis Cup. The Australian Open is the least interesting Grand Slam to European fans.

Tennis Europe Junior Tour Rankings – Overall

With effect from January 2010, Tennis Europe has introduced a new junior ranking system, devised to give a unified overall list that shows the relative strengths of all players, regardless of where they achieved their results or picked up points,

A player's total includes points from Tennis Europe Junior Tour 16 and 14 & Under events, plus points earned by players in these age categories who participate in ITF Junior Circuit and professional tournaments, all of which are weighted according to their relative strengths.

The 14 & Under ranking will continue to be available separately (see next page), as well as being integrated to the overall rankings. For more information on the rankings system, including a full explanation of the changes for 2010, visit www.TennisEurope.org.

Rankings below are as of February 23rd, 2010.

Tennis Europe Junior Tour Rankings – 14 & Under

There is much movement in the Tennis Europe Junior Tour 14 & Under rankings this month, as points from the recent Tennis Europe Winter Cups by HEAD are added to the players totals. One of the biggest beneficiaries is France's Quentin Halys. The recent Tarbes champion went on to lead his side to victory in the team event, climbing to his highest ever ranking of #3 as a result.

In the girl's list Katerina Siniakova is another player to have excelled on indoor courts in recent weeks. Following her runner up spot at the Category 1 event in Ste. Genevieve des Bois in late November, Siniakova, played on the victorious Czech girls team at the Winter Cups, winning all her matches in the process.

European Tennis Rankings – Men & Women

There are few changes in the rankings this month as many of the top players opted for light schedules in February in preparation for the North American hard court season.

Following just the second tournament victory of her comeback from a chronic shoulder injury in Memphis last week, Maria Sharapova has re-entered the European top ten for the first time in a year. Dubai finalist Victoria Azarenka put some ground between herself and recent Paris winner Elena Dementieva as the pair inch closer to the top.

In the mens list, Rafael Nadal regains his #3 spot from Andy Murray, though both players have been inactive since the Australian Open. Murray's decision not to defend his title in Rotterdam cost him enough points for the Spaniard to overtake him once again. Rotterdam champion Robin Soderling consolidates his #6 spot, while Zagreb winner Marin Cilic became the first player this year to win two ATP World Tour titles, climbing to seventh and strengthening his reputation as the form player so far this year.

Rankings as of February 22nd, 2010.
