

Russia Retains European Tennis Trophy Titles

Russia has retained the overall European Tennis Trophy, winning three of the five available categories for the second year in succession. Victory at the final professional tennis event of the season, the Davis Cup by BNP Paribas, cemented the win in the Professional Tennis category, whilst ensuring a large enough lead to edge leaders France into second place in terms of Overall Performance.

Capping a year in which they have excelled in Europe's junior team competitions and dominated the rankings at all age levels, Russia also retained the Junior Tennis Trophy, becoming the first nation to win the title in three consecutive years.

Reacting to the news, Russian Tennis Federation President Shamil Tarpishev said: "It is a great honour for the us to be recognised by Tennis Europe in such a >> << way. It is hard to express our pride at being awarded the prestigious Professional and Junior tennis trophies and, as a result, the overall European Tennis Trophy for the second year in succession. We try to do our best every day to promote European tennis through the excellent tournament performances of our players. We are happy to be working hard for the sake of tennis and helping to make it great sport worldwide."

The most significant improvement in the overall top ten was that of Italy, who recorded their best finish since winning in 1998 to rise from seventh to a strong third. Notably, Italy was the only one of 48 member nations to maintain or increase their position in all four Trophy categories. Belarus (up from 24th to 16th), Portugal (27th to 20th) and Bosnia & Herzegovina (32nd to 25th) were the highest climbers overall, their higher points tallies all largely due to excellent performances at junior level.

Netherlands won a sixth consecutive Wheelchair Tennis title, maintaining a clear lead over nearest rivals France to maintain their unbeaten record in the category since its inception in 2001.

There were no surprises in the Seniors' Tennis category, with Germany standing head and shoulders above the competition once again to extend their lead over second placed Austria to a massive 1495 points. Germany has now won the title in all sixteen editions. The most notable improvements came from Italy, who rose from seventh to third, and Belgium, who rose from fourteenth to seventh in the list.

Announcing the winners, Tennis Europe President John James commented "We would like to congratulate the Russian Tennis Federation on a truly unforgettable season. To repeat, and in some cases exceed the achievements of 2005 is a remarkable feat. 2006 has been a vintage year for European tennis, with our players accounting for all Grand Slam junior and professional singles titles, as well as all major team competitions. We look forward to continuing to assist our member nations to excel in 2007."

The prizes will be awarded at the Annual General Meeting of Tennis Europe in Vienna, Austria in March, where the new-look European Tennis Trophy for 2007 will be unveiled, with the announcement of an event sponsor and revised points system.

Tennis Europe and HEAD Announce 3-Year Partnership

Tennis Europe has announced a three-year partnership deal with the world's leading tennis equipment manufacturer, HEAD.

Under the terms of the deal – the most comprehensive ever signed by Tennis Europe – HEAD will be recognised as the 'Official Racquet, Ball, String, Bag, Accessory, Apparel and Footwear Partner' of the organisation.

HEAD will also become heavily involved with Tennis Europe's flagship junior events, assuming the presenting sponsor role of Europe's largest junior team tennis competition (henceforth known as the 'Tennis Europe Winter Cups by HEAD'), as well as of the forthcoming inaugural pan-European team event for Under 12s, set to be held next summer.

The company additionally attains exposure rights for the aforementioned product categories at all European Junior Championships and Tennis Europe Junior Masters events.

Furthermore, HEAD balls will be recognised as the 'Recommended Ball of the Tennis Europe Junior Tour,' a circuit of some 270 events for under 12s, 14s and 16s with events scheduled to be held in almost all of the European Federation's 49 member nations in 2007.

Announcing the partnership, Tennis Europe President John James commented, "We are thrilled to be able to count upon the commitment and enthusiasm of HEAD - a brand synonymous with innovation, quality and high performance. As we continue to invest our resources in over 1,000 tennis events annually, we are confident that the partnership will not only serve to enhance these events, but will also enable HEAD to directly engage with many thousands of players of all ages and abilities across the continent."

"This partnership with the organizing body of European tennis strengthens HEAD's focus and commitment to key grass roots areas of Tennis in Europe," said Robert Marte, Executive Vice President of HEAD's racquet sports division. "We highly value the opportunity to bring our brand and innovative product portfolio even stronger to the entire European market. We are excited about the opportunities to support the development and promotion of the sport in general and will get particularly involved in junior tennis by sponsoring the most prestigious junior tennis events in Europe."

The partnership will take effect from 1st January 2007, with the Tennis Europe Winter Cups by HEAD scheduled to be held across Europe throughout the month of February.

In the Spotlight: Jordi Arrese

Former top-25 player Jordi Arrese won six career titles and a silver medal at the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona. As a coach, he was Spain's Davis Cup captain from 2001-2005, winning the title in 2004 and finishing as runner-up in 2003. This year he took on the role of Sports Director of the Catalan Tennis Federation (FCT) and the Centre Internacional de Tennis (CIT) in Barcelona (Spain), Tennis Europe's Official Academy Partner. We spoke to him to find out more about the Academy.

How do you see this new challenge as the Sports Director of the CIT?

When I finished my career as a player I knew very clearly that I wanted to get involved in coaching. After some very enriching experiences, I got this opportunity to help young players to develop their game and their mentality, with the goal of becoming professional players. The project at the Centre Internacional de Tennis is an exciting one for me, especially with the support of the Catalan Federation, which has more than a hundred years of history and many famous successes.

What facilities does the centre offer?

The centre has the latest generation equipment, with a total of thirty-one courts of all surfaces: clay, hard and carpet, a specialised gymnasium for top players, an on-site residence for male players, and one for females which is under construction at the moment. We also have one of the world's leading sports medicine centres, which is focused on the prevention, diagnosis and recovery of injuries, as well as in the yield optimization for high-level competition.

What distinguishes the CIT from private academies?

There are many private tennis academies around the world, especially in the Barcelona area, which has become a centre of a great activity with a recognised international prestige. Personally, what really motivated me was the singularity of being the academy of a federation with the trajectory and the prestige of the Catalan Tennis Federation. This difference is illustrated by the support, facilities and objectives being very different from a private academy, where tennis, sometimes, is not the most important thing.

What are the CIT's goals?

The CIT is oriented for young players with high potential, and our goal is to help them to develop their game to become professionals. The FCT asked me to design a training plan, which we are developing with our technical staff. I have to say that it would be an impossible task without a staff of highly experienced professional coaches from the ATP and WTA Tour circuits, so it's a privilege to be able to count on a team like that.

Could you tell us about this special training plan?

We have a special emphasis on mobility, that is the game of feet adapted for every surface, such as clay, hard and indoor. We work with reduced groups of a maximum of four players, because in this way we can develop individual programs focused on technical, tactical and physical preparation. We see very clearly that an integral and individual preparation of each player is essential, and we must take advantage of the possibilities that new technologies offer, in order to improve the abilities of our players.

How do you think the new technologies can help?

The FCT is making great efforts in this area and recently we have acquired new machines, specially oriented for top players, which allow us to make computerised physical check ups, on resistance and effort, specific tests, and so on. We are also working with pioneering software of video analysis and observation, which is used directly on court to analyse the technical execution and tactical movements of the player. This is a very useful tool for coaches because it helps us to correct the player's game. All these elements help us to improve the efficiency and qualities of every player, and this preparation is complemented with competition.

What is the importance of competition in this kind of high-level preparation?

We believe that competition is vital to complete the training for a future professional player. Barcelona is currently one of the busiest places in the tennis world, in terms of tournaments each season. We have one or more tournaments every week and for all levels.

It's unusual for a regional federation such as the Catalan one, to have a centre like the CIT...

Of course, and thanks to this, the CIT is no doubt one of the best in Europe. All the public institutions of the Spanish and Catalan administration have invested in this project since the very beginning, and just few months later it has gained international recognition, such as that which Tennis Europe has offered us recently. The best under-18 Catalan players are currently training at the CIT, alongside some of the best from all over Spain. They share the training schedule with groups of players from around the world, who regularly visit us. Personally, I believe that this mutual cooperation is one of the great achievements of our academy.

What has been the feedback from the players who have visited from around the world?

As the sports director of the academy, I'm very proud to say that most of players and groups who have visited the CIT have had a great experience, both in terms of the personal treatment that they are received from our staff, and for the work that they did here. Many of them already come back on a regular basis. I believe that this is our finest achievement, and the best evidence that our work in the CIT has met with our initial goals.

What is the secret to the success of Catalan and Spanish players in recent years?

Spanish tennis has gone through a spectacular growth in these two last decades, and ours has become one of the most world-recognized training systems. We can discover the secrets to this success by observing the work of Catalan players and especially the FCT throughout its long history. The CIT has tried to gather all the experience and tradition of this system, and to put it into practice for the benefit of tomorrow's best players.

In recognition of the world-class training facilities on offer, CIT became Tennis Europe's Official Academy Partner earlier this year. For more information on the Centre, visit <http://centreinternacional.fctennis.org/eng>

Roger Federer Foundation

"My young tennis career has already given me so much. Setting up the Roger Federer Foundation is my way of trying to give something back, especially to those who are least well off." These were Roger Federer's words during the launch of his Foundation in December 2003. The organisation's goals are to fund projects that benefit disadvantaged children as well as promote sport for young people.

The main activity of the Roger Federer Foundation is a partnership with IMBEWU, a South African/Swiss aid organisation aimed at empowering deprived communities in the townships and rural areas of the Eastern Cape Province, South Africa. IMBEWU's core activities focus on education, health, sports/culture and volunteer programmes, mainly targeting children and youth (see www.imbewu.org). Next to the excellent quality of this initiative it was chosen due to Roger's close affinity to South Africa: it is the home country of his mother Lynette.

Smiles and stars lit children's faces in the Port Elizabeth townships when Roger paid them a surprise visit in March 2005. It was important to him to get a first-hand look at the entire project. His support has constantly grown ever since then, sponsoring schooling and meals for children, employing social workers and other staff as well as improving the local infrastructure. Roger's sponsor Nike has also helped generously by donating a sports ground where children can now ac-

While the Under 16s take a break in December, there were three 14 & Under events in earlier this month, with some interesting consequences for the rankings.

Spain's European #1 Carlos Boluda looks set to his excellent form of 2006 over into the new year, having won the first Category 1 event of the season in St. Genevieve des Bois. With the win, Boluda extended his ranking total to a tour record of 820 points, leaving him a full 350 points ahead of second placed Anton Volkov of Russia. It was not the easiest of wins for the European Junior Champion though, having to come back from the brink of defeat in his three final matches to beat Lukas Vrnak (CZE) 46 75 64, Ciprian Porumb (ROM) 57 75 60 and Volkov 26 75 62.

The girls' title was won by 12-year old Daria Gavrilova of Russia, who shot from 42nd to 15th in the rankings as a result of her first Tennis Europe Junior Tour title, also adding the doubles title for good measure.

Full draws and results from all Tour events can be found at the Tennis Europe website.

European Rankings

Despite the addition of points from the season-ending Tennis Masters Cup in Shanghai, there are no changes to the European rankings since last month's edition.

The victory in China - his third overall - cements Roger Federer's unprecedented lead at the top of the world rankings and added a number of new accomplishments to his ever growing list; first professional player ever to earn over $8 million in one season, a record season-ending points tally and the first player in the Open era to end the year with ten or more titles in three consecutive seasons, as well as guaranteeing that next February he will break Jimmy Connors' long standing record for most consecutive weeks at #1.

In recognition of their 2006 achievements, the two #1s, Federer and Belgium's Justine Henin-Hardenne were last week confirmed as the ITF World Champions.

OBITUARY: DEREK BONE

Tennis Europe was greatly saddened to learn of the sudden death of Derek Bone, who passed away on 13th November. Mr Bone attended many Junior General Meetings and worked tirelessly at the LTA and, more recently, at the FIT Academy in Buckinghamshire, England. His great contributions to British and European tennis were recognised in 2004 with the Tennis Europe Award.

OBITUARY: MICHAEL MacCAUGHEY

We are further saddened to report the death of Michael McCaughey, who passed away on the 12th December after battling with cancer. Mr. MacCaughey was also a former recipient of the Tennis Europe Award, due to his constructive and valued support to the organisation over the years, most notably in presiding over the long-standing relationship between Tennis Europe and Mr MacCaughey's company, Tretorn, and will be sorely missed by all at Tennis Europe.

ENGINEERED FOR THE ZONE

INTRODUCING AN ENGINEERING BREAKTHROUGH FROM PRINCE. By replacing traditional pin-sized string holes with giant O-ports, our driven and never-satisfied engineers reinvented the tennis racquet again — creating a super aerodynamic frame with a more responsive stringbed. This increases the sweet spot by 54% which means you hit your best shots more often. What's truly impressive is that we did it all without enlarging the racquet head, increasing its length, or adding weight. So it's easy to manoeuvre and quicker through the air. Available in Silver for extra power, Blue and Red for all-around playability and the O³ Tour for ultimate Tour control. Stop trying to hit a Sweet Spot. Start hitting a Sweet Zone. princetennis.com/O3.
